

Prof. Moley, One-Time "Dangerous Liberal," now Supports Big Business

WASHINGTON — Professor Raymond Moley, one-time right bower of the Brain Trust has just published what he calls an "extraordinary" book. It is published privately and circulated only among a very limited number of people, chiefly members of the Moley Dinner Club or of the cabinet. Cabinet members have their names stamped in gold on the green leather cover. Lesser lights have their names stamped only in silver.

The volume is interpreted by Moley's friends as subtle propaganda by big business for a fascist government with the Professor at the helm.

To appreciate properly this "extraordinary" document, it is necessary to know its background.

Business Dinners

Not long after Moley became a victim of Cordell Hull's feudist instincts and resigned from the State Department, he inaugurated the now famous Moley Dinners in New York.

Reason for them was most mysterious. Some said they were to win subscribers and advertising for Moley's Magazine "The New Deal." Others said they were to win business converts to the New Deal. Whatever may have been the original purpose, the dinners developed two definite goals.

First, they became glorification parties for Raymond Moley. Second, they were occasions at which the guests could expound their own pet theories in front of Moley and kid themselves with the idea that these were immediately relayed to the White House.

Presiding at the dinners is always Allie S. Freed, head of the Paramount Taxicab Company. Other executives are Andrew J. Maloney, head of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal Company, and George M. Verity, head of the American Rolling Mills Company, director of Westinghouse Electric and various banking institutions.

Late Mr. Moley

At these dinners Professor Moley usually arrives late.

Chairman Freed arises to announce in solemn tone that the Professor is enroute from Washington but will arrive shortly. Guests exchange awed whispers: "Conferring with the President."

Professor finally makes his appearance. It is the cue for all guests to arise and applaud.

After dinner the Professor always makes a speech. After he has finished others speak. Many guests tell the success story of their struggle up the ladder of business life. Sometimes Moley will interrupt, shake his finger, take violent exception to a speaker's economic thesis.

Thus functions the "Committee for Economic Recovery."

Converted Brain Trustee

It has been a much debated question in Washington whether the old head of the Brain Trust was disseminating more New Deal ideas to Big Business, or Big Business disseminating more ideas to Moley.

The elegant new green book answers this question.

Professor Moley has gone over to Big Business—and in a big way. The book is an exposition of the errors that the Government should remedy with no phase of private industry unless that phase of industry is unable to make a profit. Then the Government is permitted to hold the bag.

Roosevelt is championed, personally. But everything he stands for is condemned.

To get the full perspective of Moley's right-about-face, it must be remembered that he was once hailed as the dangerous liberal of the Administration. He was the man to whom Felix Frankfurter (Continued On Page Six)

COLUMBUS, April 22.—Returning to the capital to begin the sixteenth week's deliberations and with sin die adjournment believed to be not more than three weeks away, the Ohio house of representatives will vote tonight on whether the sale of eggs in Ohio is to be regulated by the state.

Six other measures are on the calendar for final passage, all of them being either local or minor importance.

Rep. D. W. Galehouse (R) Marshallville, is sponsoring the egg regulatory legislation. It provides that eggs represented to the purchaser as meeting the standards of the U. S. department of agriculture must do so or the merchant will be subject to a fine.

Rep. Mayer and McKie scarcely expected their resolution to be adopted, but they were prepared to urge its acceptance as one means of raising several millions of dollars.

AMERICAN AND BRITISH WOMEN ESCAPE BANDITS

SHANGHAI, April 22.—Fleeing from the menace of Communist troops at Chengtu, forty American and British women and children arrived by air today at Chungking, 250 miles south of the threatened city.

Many others are leaving the city by boat, but a few elected to remain in Chengtu, in the belief that the forces of the Nationalist government, although steadily pressed back, would be able to make a stand there.

Some 40,000 Red troops are advancing upon Chengtu, it is reported.

MRS. KELLSTADT DIES IN COLUMBUS

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 9 a. m. in St. Francis church, Columbus, for Mrs. Mary Lynch Kellstadt, wife of Charles Kellstadt and a sister of Miss Sarah Lynch, V. Mount, who died Sunday morning.

Mrs. Kellstadt was a Circleville native and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Lynch. She had been ill two months.

Besides her husband and sister she is survived by two sons, Charles H. of Cleveland and E. Harold of Columbus.

The remains will be at the O'Shaughnessy chapel, 375 E. Town-st., until the hour of services. Burial will be in the Kellstadt family lot in Forest cemetery.

Midwest Families Begin Migration Into Alaska

Two Hundred Families of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota to Establish Agricultural Empire in North Country

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 22.—Convinced by Uncle Sam's agents that fertile lands lie between Alaska's glaciers, 200 farm families from Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota are going up there to establish a new agricultural empire in the belt of the midnight sun.

This city, built by the industry of their immigrant ancestors, will see the start of the drama-packed exodus, Friday, April 26, when 67 farmers, with their wives, children and portable household belongings, will entrain for San Francisco to board the ship which will carry them to Alaska.

The remaining 133 families will desert their drouth and erosion-impooverished grain belt lands within the fortnight and sail from Seattle May 15.

Into Strange Land
This migration, in the burdens of labor and hardships it will impose on the colonists, is seen by many as the 1935 equivalent of the migration of the Pilgrim Fathers from England to Massachusetts in 1620. Yet although none of the families selected for the trek knows anything regarding life in the great north territory from which few of them will return, all eagerly have accepted the chance it offers for an escape from poverty.

In language they understand, Don L. Irwin, director of the government agricultural experiment station at Matanuska, Alaska, has told the farmers concerning the fertility of the soil; how a glacier in some early age moved down between the Chugach and Talkeetna ranges, leaving the valley of the Matanuska coated with rich loam 10 feet deep; how in the 120 year growing season potatoes, grain, berries and green vegetables thrive to an extent unknown in the United States.

To these inducements the government added an offer to lend each family up to $3,000, help it (Continued On Page Six)

BAILEY ORDERED TO WORKHOUSE

Roscoe "Pat" Bailey, 30, Court-st., was committed to the Cincinnati workhouse, Monday, by Mayor W. B. Cady when he failed to pay a fine of $50 and costs for intoxication, disorderly conduct and disturbing the peace.

Bailey, police charged, broke up his furniture and threw a bottle at his little boy nearly striking him.

Accompanied by Capt. R. P. Williams, Capt. Anderson soared 26,000 feet in the huge army balloon, taking off from Scott field, Belleville, Ill., and landing on a hillside on a farm near here.

HEARINGS TONIGHT

Bunker Hill Scene of Sunday Collisions

Sheriff's deputies today were trying to figure out an accident, rather a series of accidents, which occurred at Bunker hill, Harrison-twp., early Sunday evening.

Several persons were injured and three men, Mouser 'Red' Crayne and Frank Greeno, this city, and Glen Redman, Columbus negro, are in jail awaiting hearings this evening before Squire H. O. Eveland. The nature of the charges yet to be filed has not been determined.

The accidents started when the car Crayne and Greeno were in, going south on the Scioto trail, struck the northbound car of Mrs. Marie Moore, 55, W. South-st., Worthington. Mrs. Moore's head shattered glass on a door but she was not hurt.

Struck Second Car
Crayne and Greeno went on and hit the machine of Carl Stevens, 823 Richards-st., Columbus. After this collision Crayne and Greeno stepped their car.

A crowd of persons gathered around the damaged machines before deputies could arrive and it was only a moment before Redman, who lives at 241 E. Greenwood-st., Columbus, came along in a De Sota. He didn't stop or even slow down, witnesses said, but struck three persons injuring all.

Robert Stevens, 17, riding with his father, was standing in the road and was knocked between 10 and 15 feet by the negro's car. Stevens was taken to Berger hospital by Ralph Leach where he was treated for cuts and bruises and a head injury by Dr. H. D. Jackson. The youth, a student, was removed from Berger hospital and taken to a Columbus hospital for X-rays.

Kingston Man Hit
Next the negro's car hit Dorah Morris, of Kingston, and injured his leg. Morris was taken to a Kingston physician's, deputies reporting he possibly had a broken leg.

Then Lewis "Tate" McClarren, Logan-st., got in the way of the Redman car. He was not badly hurt.

Redman did not stop then, the deputies were told, until Albert Van Fosson, Union and Mingo-sts., caught up with him a short way from the scene. Redman said he felt his car hit something but didn't know what it was.

It is possible driving while intoxicated charges will be placed against either Crayne or Greeno, whichever was driving the car, while operating a vehicle without respect for others and failing to stop after an accident may be charged to Redman. He was accompanied by three other negroes.

The hearing is scheduled for 7:30 at which time all principals in the mix-up will appear either for hearings or to press charges.

Deputy Sheriffs Earl Weaver and Miller Fissell investigated.

BANK TELLER MURDERS TWO

Chicagoan Becomes Suddenly Insane; Wounds Third Child In Home

CHICAGO, April 22.—William Gardner, teller in a loop bank, today went suddenly insane and killed his son, a daughter and seriously wounded another son. The killing occurred in their home in La Grange park.

The two young people killed were Rita Jane Gardner, 20, a graduate of a southern university and employe at the First National bank, where her father worked for the past forty years; and Donald Gardner, 14, a freshman at the La Grange high school.

The wounded boy is Kenneth Gardner, 17.

Mrs. Elsa Gardner, 49, the mother, was asleep in another part of the house and escaped unharmed.

Gardner was driven temporarily insane, police said, by the dread of inherent insanity in his family and planned to wipe out all in the house as an "act of mercy" for fear they were all tainted. Before he could reach his wife, however, police arrived and subdued him.

Fleming announced last week he intends to file a habeas corpus writ, contending that the $9,000 bond set for his and Snyder's release is unreasonably high.

LAMASTERS JAILED ON CUTTING CHARGE

Francis Lamasters, 31, was in the county jail Monday under $2,000 bond awaiting grand jury action on a charge of cutting with intent to wound Ralph Emerine in a beer parlor fracas last week.

Lamasters pleaded not guilty in a hearing before Mayor W. E. Cady.

He was arrested Saturday evening by Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputy Earl Weaver in the east end of the city. He had been missing since the cutting affair. He stabbed Emerine, a clerk at the John Moore restaurant, in the groin after Emerine refused to sell him beer.

Emerine filed the charge.

JURORS TO STUDY FLEMING CHARGES

ATHENS, April 22.—A special session of the Athens county grand jury was scheduled to convene here today to consider charges against Grover W. Fleming, publisher, and William Snyder, editor of the American Examiner.

The jury, comprised of four women and 11 men, also will study the assault and battery charge against Robert C. Moore of Cleveland, Ohio university student, an alleged participant in the tarring and feathering of H. N. Thompson, who was accused of providing information for Examiner stories.

Fleming and Snyder have been in the Athens jail for more than a week. They were arrested on charges of intent to corrupt the morals in Athens county.

Fleming announced last week he intends to file a habeas corpus writ, contending that the $9,000 bond set for his and Snyder's release is unreasonably high.

ARMY PIGEONS TELL NEWS OF ISLE DISASTER

7,000 Reported Injured as Formosa Island is Scene of Tragedy

VILLAGES WRECKED

Red Cross, Other Aid Agencies in Field

(Copyright, 1935, By International News Service)

TAIPEI, Formosa, April 22.—Army carrier pigeons winging over two earthquake-devastated provinces today brought to Governor General Kenji Nakagawa word that yesterday's earthquake had taken a toll of 3,003 dead and 7,000 injured.

While slight shocks continued to rock the Japanese-owned island, Governor Nakagawa conveyed the extent of the disaster to Edward Maney, the American consul.

"The death list is rising as isolated villages slowly report their losses. Accurate details are hard to obtain because railway lines are wrecked and telephone wires down," Maney said.

American and other foreign residents are safe, so far as could be ascertained.

With at least 12,000 houses destroyed and as many more badly damaged, more than 100,000 persons, practically all Chinese, were homeless, and spent a sleepless night of terror in a driving rain in the open.

Relief work was speedily organized, with the Red Cross dispatching parties from Tainan and Tientsin, the larger towns of the stricken district, and the army battalions at Tainan sending 50 relief parties to set up field dressing stations.

Lack of medical supplies, coupled with the minor recurrent shocks, added to the agonizing condition of the natives huddled in the woods and on mountain sides.

The first shock, at 6:02 a. m. Sunday, caught most of the natives sleeping in their huts of sun-dried dirt bricks, easily shaken down by the quake. A second tremor followed at 6:26, completing the destruction wrought by the first.

In the cities, where the houses were chiefly constructed of wood or stone, there was less damage from the tremors themselves, but fires sprang out in several places, raging through the tinderlike houses and increasing the death toll.

STOCK HANDLERS PLANNING STRIKE

CHICAGO, April 22.—Extra police squads were stationed in the stockyards today to guard against disorders threatened by elements of the Livestock Handlers' union, who are seeking a renewal of last summer's 12-day strike.

The union secretly voted a week ago to strike, it was learned.

Stockyard officials denied the existence of a walkout, declaring today's shipments are being handled on schedule.

Union officials, however, said some of the livestock handlers have walked out, and announced a union meeting for May 3, to further consider the employment situation at the yards.

Diminishing receipts—due to the drought and the cattle destruction program of the A. A. A.—were held responsible for the labor situation by union officials.

Tomorrow the House was to vote on the joint resolution of Reps. Mayer and McKie, Cincinnati Republicans, proposing to permit the people to vote in November on a constitutional amendment to legalize lotteries, with the intention of having the state conduct a lottery to raise revenue for governmental purposes.

While the lottery proposal appeared to be popular with members from the larger counties, it was anathema to those from rural counties where the large majority of the constituents are opposed to anything that smacks so loudly of gambling.

Reps. Mayer and McKie scarcely expected their resolution to be adopted, but they were prepared to urge its acceptance as one means of raising several millions of dollars.

ARMY PIGEONS TELL NEWS OF ISLE DISASTER

7,000 Reported Injured as Formosa Island is Scene of Tragedy

VILLAGES WRECKED

Red Cross, Other Aid Agencies in Field

TAIHOKU, Formosa, April 22—Army carrier pigeons winging over two earthquake-devastated provinces today brought to Governor General Kenji Nakagawa word that yesterday's earthquakes had taken a toll of 3,003 dead and 7,000 injured.

While slight shocks continued to rock the Japanese-owned island, Governor Nakagawa conveyed the extent of the disaster to Edward Maney, the American consul.

"The death list is rising as isolated villages slowly report their losses. Accurate details are hard to obtain because railway lines are wrecked and telephone wires down," Maney said.

American and other foreign residents are safe, so far as could be ascertained.

With at least 12,000 houses destroyed and as many more badly damaged, more than 100,000 persons, practically all Chinese, were homeless, and spent a sleepless night of terror in a driving rain in the open.

Red Cross Sends Aid

Relief work was speedily organized, with the Red Cross dispatching parties from Taiku and Taichu the larger towns of the stricken district, and the army battalion at Taichu sending 50 relief parties to set up field dressing stations.

Lack of medical supplies, coupled with the minor recurrent shocks, added to the agonizing condition of the natives huddled in the woods and on mountain-sides.

The first shock, at 6:02 a. m. Sunday, caught most of the natives sleeping in their huts of sundried dirt bricks, easily shaken down by the quake. A second tremor followed at 6:26, completing the destruction wrought by the first.

In the cities, where the houses were chiefly constructed of wood or stone, there was less damage from the tremors themselves, but fires sprang out in several places, raging through the tinderlike houses and increasing the death toll.

STOCK HANDLERS PLANNING STRIKE

CHICAGO, April 22—Extra police squads were stationed in the stockyards today to guard against disorders threatened by elements of the Livestock Handlers' union, who are seeking a renewal of last summer's 12-day strike.

The union secretly voted a week ago to strike, it was learned. Stockyards officials denied the existence of a walkout, declaring today's shipments are being handled on schedule.

Union officials, however, said some of the livestock handlers have walked out, and announced a union meeting for May 3, to further consider the employment situation at the yards.

Diminishing receipts—due to the drought and the cattle destruction program of the A. A. A.—were held responsible for the labor situation by union officials.

A CITY PARK

AGITATION for a city park and recreation ground, of which Circleville has long been in need, is highly commendable and seems to be gaining in favor among people of all walks of life. The matter was given further impetus recently when Joseph Adkins, Jr., representing a group of interested citizens, appeared before the city council with a recommendation for general city and community interest in the project, and a quest for aid in starting the movement. Council thereupon authorized the appointment of a committee of its members to act with representatives of all civic organizations in the development of ways and means for providing some sort of a recreational resort.

A city park is an investment in civic pride, and in the moral and physical welfare of the community. With suitable playground equipment for the youngsters, a swimming pool, baseball ground, tennis courts, etc., it would provide the types of recreation and amusement that are so much in demand and so much enjoyed. If not provided at home, it is quite natural for our own people to go away from home where such privileges can be enjoyed.

A suitable site for such a purpose may be secured at an estimated cost of $10,000, and there is a possibility of federal, state and city aid in financing. What investment could be made that would bring as much real enjoyment to such a large number of people?

The Herald believes that every organization in the city should lend its support to this worth while project, and get out and work hard to get across.

LAUGHING AT DANGER

THAT mah is adventuresome, daring and courageous being witness him as he runs the gamut of daily life. It is a trait that comes to him naturally instinctively. He needs no provocation to urge him to deeds of daring nor can he be deterred by the cautious fears of the timid members of the species.

It is known that all animals experience the sensation of fear and that all fear is based on a premonition of bodily harm or death, but, although this sensation is strongest in man, man is most prone to court it.

In spite of thousands of fatalities annually man, women and children daily climb perilous crags, tempt the deeps in flimsy craft, take to the air, participate in dangerous sports, speed in automobiles and otherwise disport themselves as though they would laugh at death.

We know that man loves life and fears death. We also know that he momentarily tosses the dice with the grim reaper and thinks nothing of the experience. The only explanation for this seeming paradox is the fact that the spark of eternal hope is stronger in the human mind than either his fear of death or his love of the risk that thrills.

THE TOPHEAVY CLASS

THE VERMONT STATE TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION was told a few days ago by a Columbia university authority, that modern education is creating a "topheavy white collared class, which knows books and theories about life, but is not equipped to know the problems of life."

It is remarked in most schools, that the pupils want to fit themselves for business jobs. They feel that their fathers have not done so well as hand workers, so they all want to become bosses. But the world does not need so many bosses. More folks must be willing to be bossed.

If we turn out 75 per cent white collar workers, while the world asks only for 25 per cent of such ones, what becomes of the other 50 per cent? There will be a lot of disappointed ones.

The schools have to give the pupils the kind of education the parents want them to have. The parents should seek practical training for their young people, but it should be such that they can read, think and speak intelligently.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Three hundred seventeen prisoners lost their lives in the Ohio State penitentiary fire "Dick" M. Whortle, of Era was one of the victims. He was sent up from this county and had been in the big prison one week.

The population of Tilton was 278, a gain of eight residents in 10 years, according to census tabulations.

Mr. and Mrs. William Denman, E. Main-st., celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Nearly 200 friends and relatives were guests at a reception in their honor.

15 YEARS AGO

Mrs. Rosa Gehres, Circleville, was fatally burned when her clothing caught on fire while she was working around the kitchen stove.

Harry Minshall, New Holland, critically injured by a premature explosion of dynamite while he was blowing stumps.

The girls of the senior class of Circleville high school donned gingham aprons and sunbonnets to economize in dress and as a protest against high prices.

25 YEARS AGO

Edward Buzzard, nine-year-old Darbyville boy, was badly injured about the face and head by an explosion of gun powder. He placed a quantity of powder in a saucer and applied a match to it.

The temperature dropped to 26 degrees, the freeze doing considerable damage to fruits and vegetables. John S. Crookston, Washington, exhibited some cherries as large as peas that were killed by the frost.

The bid of H. W. Fosnaugh for building the new city prison was rejected, it being higher than the estimate. Only one bid was received.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

CHAPTER 42
ONLY ONE man could make Consuelo star of the Follies—and now he had failed her. The gypsy girl went to him, shaking with emotion. "Oh my darling, I am not asking much," the gypsy pleaded. "I am worthy of this thing. You lie when you say you are through with me. You love me and you know you do. All I ask is this one thing. I am worthy of it, my darling. I can dance a thousand times better than L'ville. I will put this show over until it is the talk of the world. I cannot say I will make you rich, for you are rich already, but I will make this show so famous that people will come from the far corners of the earth to see Consuelo, the Gypsy Dancer, and you will be proud of me. Can't you understand? Can't you see my dream? Can't you realize that this means more than all else to me and can you not understand how I would love the man who makes this dream come true?" She choked the words and it was a moment before she could go on. "You are my friend and my lover, if I cannot turn to you to help me, then who will? I have no one. I left my own people. I left the gypsy camp for you and for my dream. Do not fail me, Stewart, do not fail me now!"

There was silence between them. "You should have been an actress, not a dancer!" He stuck his hands into his pockets and walked to the window. He stood there and did not speak or move.

His silence grew unbearable. Finally he turned to her.

"You are right when you say that I want my own way. I had planned this for you for next season. You are not ready now to star in the Follies. It's only your magnificent conceit that makes you think you are, and because of that you are not playing this game fairly, either with me or with Louise. A bit of applause has turned your head and it would be useless to even hold out the promise of next year. I can see quite plainly now that you care nothing at all about me—except what I can do for you. Playing the role of sucker gets tiresome! And after all I haven't forgiven things you said about me last night." He picked up his hat and placed his stick under his arm. "Out of consideration of the fact that I hold myself a bit responsible for you I'm going to let you continue to run as it is written. But I'm not going to put you out of the Follies after what you've done. I don't know how much Goldberg is paying you but I guess it will be enough for you to live on, since your preference seems to run to dirty hoveis. I will settle up what bills you have and you may keep the things I've given you. That's fair enough." He turned to go. "No more nonsense like today out of you, gypsy, or I'll put you out of the show and send you back to the dirty tribe you came from. I expect you to have a regular routine and we'll try to explain about the mistake in the papers the best way we can. A fine mess that is. Now no more rumpuses backstage, do you understand or—out you go!"

Consuelo moved up to him, eyes flashing, gypsy temper unleashed.

"You dog! You son of a dog!" She slapped him across the face. "I spit on you! I cry out revenge and the Gypsy Consuelo hates you!"

She reached out to slap him again but before she could do so he had grabbed her wrist and twisted it behind her.

"Let me go!" she shrieked. "You dog!"

She bit into his arm. Then before she knew what had happened, she was on the floor, her arms behind her, Stewart bending over her.

"Listen, gypsy, you've gone a bit too far! Now take back those words!"

"You dog!"

She held up her head and laughed in his face.

"Dog! Less than a dog!"

He drew her wrists higher.

She bit her lips to keep from crying out with pain. The color went from her cheeks.

"Take back your lying words, you dirty little gypsy!"

"I take back nothing!" she gasped. "You are a white dog, a low dog!"

She was panting. The pain was almost unbearable now.

"You can't stop me from this thing I want!" The last word was hardly audible. She bent her head to the floor. "When you make your promise to me—"

—tonight—I will—say—you are not—a dog!" It was all she could do to speak so great was the pain.

"To hell with you and your orgains!" He flung her from him.

Consuelo lay on the floor groaning. Then she raised herself and began to rub the reddened wrists. She was sobbing now.

Stewart was staring down at her. He wiped the sweat from his forehead.

"I've hurt you!"

No answer.

"Gypsy girl, I've hurt you!"

She looked up.

"Be at the theater early. I'll have everything fixed up." He paused.

"The marble palace went through an earthquake, shaken, but undamaged," he added whimsically. "I may be a fool but it's grand to be a fool once in a while. Tonight, my dear, I will make your dream come true for you!"

The girl knelt on the floor where he had left her. Her eyes were closed.

"Dog! Son of a dog!" she muttered. "I wonder if after all I am maybe falling in love with this dog!"

Presently she got to her feet.

"Tonight my dream comes true!" She threw back her head and laughed, and then she put her face in her hands and cried with happiness that was greater than pain had at last this thing had come to her.

conceit that makes you think so. You think, white man, you are big enough to take back this too?" She held up the swelling wrists.

"Don't be cruel!" He buried his lips against her arm. "I'm everything you said plus being a fool. Look up at me, gypsy girl, and say you forgive me for hurting you like this and I will try to build back your dream."

"Is it only a promise?"

"No, not this time."

She raised her eyes to his.

"Stewart, I take back my words. They, too, were spoken in anger. It is only the spiteful gypsy part of me that speaks such words. I have read your fortune, my friend, and I know my own and our lines travel close together and the future holds much for us."

She did not say whether it held happiness or unhappiness.

"That first day I met you I knew this and if I have been free with myself with you that was the reason. Then when you were so cold to me I tried to hate you and to fall in love with other men, but I could not. You have made me love you, Stewart, and it is only when one loves that one can be wounded so cruelly."

He held her to him. Then he got to his feet. He was a shamed-faced youngster.

"Be at the theater early. I'll have everything fixed up." He paused.

"The marble palace went through an earthquake, shaken, but undamaged," he added whimsically. "I may be a fool but it's grand to be a fool once in a while. Tonight, my dear, I will make your dream come true for you!"

Why Little May Be Said Favoring Use of Alcohol

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

NOW THAT repeal is in full force in most states, we are able to examine alcohol with less prejudice than we did during the prohibition era.

Whether one uses it or not there is very little to be said in favor of it. We heard a great deal during the prohibition era of the outrageousness of allowing congress to dictate to medical men the drugs they should or should not use, but so far as alcohol was concerned, this was admittedly a sentimental than an actual grievance.

In looking over the references to alcohol in standard medical books, it is found that in one text-book on medicine, alcohol is mentioned as the cause of disease in the discussion of 50 different diseases. This includes cases of epilepsy, where alcohol in the parents is supposed to be a cause of the development of the disease in the offspring.

Alcohol Prohibited

In this same text, alcoholic beverages are prohibited in the treatment of 15 diseases. These include ulcer of the stomach, cirrhosis of the liver, Bright's disease and epilepsy. In recommending alcohol for treatment, only six diseases rate such a discussion. In pneumonia, it is said that it still has its advocates as a stimulant, but should be administered only to patients who are chronic alcoholic addicts. In cancer of the stomach, alcoholic beverages may be the only things that are tolerated. In heart weakness, it is stated that alcohol has been recommended, but that there is no certain evidence of its real value. In angina pectoris, it is said that alcohol improves the patients. In hardening of the arteries, it is also recommended to have light wine or moderately strong alcoholic drinks.

In a standard text-book on dietetics, the author discusses the various uses and values of alcoholic beverages, and admits that they may have some place in the diet, but concludes: "Upon the whole, the enormous poverty, misery and unhappiness which comes to the race from the unrestricted use of alcohol greatly outweighs the benefit which its judicious use may bring to a few persons."

The question of whether alcohol should be classed among the foods is also debatable. Undoubtedly it produces a certain number of calories, and in that sense it is a food, but it is neither an inexpensive nor an efficient food, and one of its main dangers is that it addict may use so much of it that he does not eat an adequate or balanced diet otherwise.

Bob Pickens developed an appetite for mushrooms the other day and thereby hangs a tale. Someone told him of a sort of a mushroom garden of olden located at a point about 40 miles distance, so Bob went exploring. He hunted all over the designated area, but if there had ever been any mushrooms in that particular spot the evidence had been completely obliterated.

He came home disappointed, but his disappointment turned to chagrin when he learned that during his absence George Foerst had gathered about a peck of those specimens of this cryptogamic plant within a hundred feet of Bob's back door, and had enjoyed a feast while Bob was hunting a "mess" 40 miles away.

And somebody suggested that Bob should invest in a mushroom mound to aid him in his search for this particular edible fungi.

C. K. Writes: "Since when has Sardinia become a part of Adams, as mentioned in your column? I was a resident of that town several years ago and thought all the time I was living in Brown-co."

C. K. is right, and I stand corrected. Sardinia is in Brown-co. With all the dust storms, soil erosion, plowing under crops, etc., when farmers with an urge to travel follow their farms over into the next county, I just got mixed up in boundary lines and shifted Sardinia over into another county.

City newspaper columnist have a lot of fun at the expense of small towns—at least they think it's fun. Col. Blume, in a near by city Sunday publication, asks questions and then answers them himself, thereby proving that he's smart. Here's a question and answer that appeared recently:

"Dear Col. Blume—When me and Ted Lewis was kids, curfew rang every night at 10 p. m. down in good, ol' Circleville. Can you-all tell me if that quaint custom is still being observed down there—One O'Clock Baby?"

"Dear One O'Clock Baby—Curfew was abolished in Circleville some time ago. It seems that everyone there is going to bed at 9 p. m. and there ain't nobody awake to ring the damn bell at 10 o'clock—Col. Blume!"

Brother, if you want to come down and spend a nice, quiet evening, I'll engage a cell and see that you are not disturbed.

THE TOPHEAVY CLASS

THE VERMONT STATE TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION was told a few days ago by a Columbia university authority, that modern education is creating a "topheavy white collared class, which knows books and theories about life, but is not equipped to know the problems of life."

It is remarked in most schools, that the pupils want to fit themselves for business jobs. They feel that their fathers have not done so well as hand workers, so they all want to become bosses. But the world does not need so many bosses. More folks must be willing to be bossed.

If we turn out 75 per cent white collar workers, while the world asks only for 25 per cent of such ones, what becomes of the other 50 per cent? There will be a lot of disappointed ones.

The schools have to give the pupils the kind of education the parents want them to have. The parents should seek practical training for their young people, but it should be such that they can read, think and speak intelligently.

Every pest, scientist tell us, has a natural enemy to hold it in check. Meanwhile you can tell it you are broke yourself.

Ruin of the wheat growers is dreadful, but it was only a question of time, anyway, till Japan would send over a cheap substitute.

Fishermen off Florida fought a great fish six hours but do not mention the kind. Entering into the spirit of the occasion, we'll help out by stating that it was a whale.

Europe owes us something like $13,000,000,000, but we're a generous and forgiving people and send over a few millions more each year as investments in lottery tickets.

Mustapha Kemal has undertaken the improvement of the Turkish language. He's a little envious because some of the American radio spellbinders can talk turkey even better than the Turks.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Three hundred seventeen prisoners lost their lives in the Ohio State penitentiary fire. "Dick" M. Whortle, of Era, was one of the victims. He was sent up from this county and had been in the big prison one week.

The population of Tarleton was 278, a gain of eight residents in 10 years, according to census tabulations.

Mr. and Mrs. William Denman, E. Main-st, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Nearly 200 friends and relatives were guests at a reception in their honor.

15 YEARS AGO

Mrs. Rosa Gehres, Circleville, was fatally burned when her clothing caught on fire while she was working around the kitchen stove.

Harry Minshall, New Holland, critically injured by a premature explosion of dynamite while he was blowing stumps.

The girls of the senior class of Circleville high school donned gingham aprons and sunbonnets to economize in dress and as a protest against high prices.

25 YEARS AGO

Edward Buzzard, nine-year-old Darbyville boy, was badly injured about the face and head by an explosion of gun powder. He placed a quantity of powder in a saucer and applied a match to it.

The temperature dropped to 26 degrees, the freeze doing considerable damage to fruits and vegetables. John S. Crookson, Washington-town farmer, exhibited some cherries as large as peas that were killed by the frost.

The bid of H. W. Fosnaugh for building the new city prison was rejected, it being higher than the estimate. Only one bid was received.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

McDONALD FEADER

CHAPTER 42

ONLY ONE man could make Consuelo star of the Folies—and now he had failed her. The gypsy-girl went to him, shaking with emotion. "Oh my darling, I am not asking much," the gypsy pleaded. "I am worthy of this thing. You lie when you say you are through with me. You love me and you know you do. All I ask is this one thing. I am worthy of it, my darling. I can dance a thousand times better than L'ville. I will put this show over until it is the talk of the world. I cannot say I will make you rich, for you are rich already, but I will make this show so famous that people will come from the far corners of the earth to see Consuelo, the Gypsy Dancer, and you will be proud of me. Can't you understand? Can't you see my dream? Can't you realize that this means more than all else to me and can you not understand how I would love the man who makes this dream come true?" Sobs choked the words and it was a moment before she could go on. "You are my friend and my lover, if I cannot turn to you to help me, then who will? I have no one. I left my own people. I left the gypsy camp for you and for my dream. Do not fail me, Stewart, do not fail me now!"

There was silence between them. "You should have been an actress, not a dancer!" He struck his hands into his pockets and walked to the window. He stood there and did not speak or move.

His silence grew unbearable. Finally he turned to her.

"You are right when you say that I want my own way. I had planned this for you for next season. You are not ready now to star in the Folies. It's only your magnificent conceit that makes you think you are, and because of that you are not playing this game fairly, either with me or with Louise. A bit of applause has turned your head and it would be useless to even hold out the promise of next year. I can see quite plainly now that you care nothing at all about me—except what I can do for you. Playing the role of sucker gets tiresome! And after all I haven't forgiven the things you said about me last night." He picked up his hat and placed his stick under his arm. "Out of consideration of the fact that I hold myself a bit responsible for you I'm going to let your contract run as it is written. I'm big enough not to put you out of the Folies after what you've done. I don't know how much Goldberger is paying you but I guess it will be enough for you to live on, since your preference seems to run to dirty hotels. I will settle up what bills you have and you may keep the things I've given you. That's fair enough." He turned to go. "No more nonsense like today out of you, gypsy, or I'll put you out of the show for good."

Consuelo moved up to him, eyes flashing, gypsy temper unleashed. "You dog! You son of a dog!" She slapped him across the face. "I spit on you! I cry out revenge and the Gypsy Consuelo hates you!" She reached out to slap him again but before she could do so he had grabbed her wrist and twisted it behind her.

"Let me go!" she shrieked. "You dog!" She bit into his arm. Then before she knew what had happened, she was on the floor, her arms behind her, Stewart bending over her. "Listen, gypsy, you don't talk to me that way! You've gone a bit too far! Now take back those words!"

"I can do anything," "Maybe it is only your magnificent conceit that makes you think so. You think, white man, you are big enough to take back this too?" She held up the swelling wrists.

"Don't be cruel!" He buried his lips against her arm. "I'm everything you said plus being a fool. Look up at me, gypsy girl, and say you forgive me for hurting you like this and I will try to build back your dream."

"Is it only a promise?" "No, not this time." "She raised her eyes to his. "Stewart, I take back my words. They, too, were spoken in anger. It is only the spiteful gypsy part of me that speaks such words. I have read your fortune, my friend, and I know my own and our lines travel close together and the future holds much for us." She did not say whether it held happiness or unhappiness.

"That first day I met you I knew this and if I have been free with myself with you that was the reason. Then when you were so cold to me I tried to hate you and to fall in love with other men, but I could not. You have made me love you, Stewart, and it is only when one loves that one can be wounded so cruelly."

He held her to him. Then he got to his feet. He was a shamed youngster.

"Be at the theater early. I'll have everything fixed up." He passed. "The marble palace went through an earthquake, shaken, but undamaged," he added whimsically. "I may be a fool but it's grand to be a fool once in a while. Tonight, my dear, I will make your dream come true for you!"

The girl knelt on the floor where he had left her. Her eyes were closed.

"Dog! Son of a dog!" she muttered. "I wonder if after all I am maybe falling in love with this dog?" "Presently she got to her feet.

"Tonight my dream comes true!" She threw back her head and laughed, and then she put her face in her hands and cried with happiness that was greater than pain that at last this thing had come to her.

Heard & Seen

BY KAY JAY

Bob Pickens developed an appetite for mushrooms the other day and thereby hangs a tale. Someone told him of a sort of a mushroom garden of eden located at a point, about 40 miles distance, so Bob went exploring. He hunted all over the designated area, but if there had ever been any mushrooms in that particular spot the evidence had been completely obliterated.

He came home disappointed, but his disappointment turned to chagrin when he learned that during his absence George Foerst had gathered about a peck of choice specimens of this cryptogamic plant within a hundred feet of Bob back door, and had enjoyed a "mess" 40 miles away.

And somebody suggested that Bob should invest in a mushroom mound to aid him in his search for this particular edible fungi.

C. K. Writes: "Since when has Sardinia become a part of Adamsco, as mentioned in your column? I was a resident of that town several years ago and thought all the time I was living in Brown-co."

C. K. is right, and I stand corrected. Sardinia is in Brown-co. With all the dust storms, soil erosion, plowing under crops, etc., when farmers with an urge to travel follow their farms over to the next county, I just got mixed up in boundary lines and shifted Sardinia over into another county.

City newspaper columnist have a lot of fun at the expense of small towns—at least they think it's fun. Col. Blume, in a near by city Sunday publication, asks questions and then answers them himself, thereby proving that he's smart. Here's a question and answer that appeared recently:

"Dear Col. Blume—When me and Ted Lewis was kids, curfew rang every night at 10 p. m. down in good, old Circleville. Can you tell me if that quaint custom is still being observed down there—One O'Clock Baby?"

"Dear One O'Clock Baby—Curfew was abolished in Circleville some time ago. It seems that everyone there is going to bed at 9 p. m. and there ain't nobody awake to ring the dam bell at 10 o'clock—Col Blume."

Brother, if you want to come down and spend a nice, quiet evening, I'll engage a cell and see that you are not disturbed.

In a Nebraska town there is a "No Rain No Shave Club," the members of which measure their lengthening whiskers as they keep a solemn pledge to shun the razor as long as the raindrops shun Nebraska.

In other sections the rain has been so unremitting as to have become almost a permanent thing. Floods, tornadoes and landslides of the dampened earth do great damage and take a toll in human life. It is an ill-ordered world, full of troubles with the unreliability of the weather not the least of them.

"You dog!"

She held up her head and laughed in his face.

"Dog! Less than a dog!" He drew her wrists higher. She bit her lips to keep from crying out with pain. The color went from her cheeks.

"Take back your lying words, you dirty little gypsy!" "I take back nothing!" she gasped. "You are a white dog, a low dog!" She was panting. The pain was almost unbearable now. "You can't stop me from this thing I want!" The last word was hardly audible. She bent her head to the floor. "When you make your promise to me—" she paused for breath—"that I shall be star-of the Folies—tonight—I will—say—you are not—a dog!" It was all she could do to speak so great was the pain.

"To hell with you and your bargains!" He flung her from him. Consuelo lay on the floor groaning. Then she raised herself and began to rub the reddened wrists. She was sobbing now.

Stewart was staring down at her. He wiped the sweat from his forehead.

"I've hurt you!" "Gypsy girl, I've hurt you!" She looked up.

"Your last gift to me has not been a pleasant one, my friend." Her voice held utter despair, all anger gone from it. "My dream is less than the dust. The marble palace is gone. You must feel good and fine to have been able to do this to me." Her head dropped. "Go now, you have hurt me all you can!"

He was on his knees beside her. "Consuelo, forgive me, I've acted like a crazy fool! I didn't mean to hurt you so badly. I didn't know what I was doing! I've never done a thing like this before."

He was massaging her wrists. "I didn't know I was such a beast! Consuelo, will you take back those hateful words you said to me?" He was pleading.

"And you think you can build my dream again?" "I can do anything."

"Maybe it is only your magnificent conceit that makes you think so. You think, white man, you are big enough to take back this too?" She held up the swelling wrists.

"Don't be cruel!" He buried his lips against her arm. "I'm everything you said plus being a fool. Look up at me, gypsy girl, and say you forgive me for hurting you like this and I will try to build back your dream."

Poems That Live

DESERVINGS This is the height of our deserts: A little pity for life's hurts; A little rain, a little sun, A little sleep when work is done. A little righteous punishment. Less for our deeds than their intent;

A little pardon now and then, Because we are but struggling men. A little light to show the way. A little guidance where we stray; A little love before we pass To rest beneath the kirkyard grass.

A little faith, in days of change, When life is stark and bare and strange;

A solace when our eyes are wet With tears of longing and regret. True it is that we cannot claim Unmeasured recompense or blame, Because our way of life is small: A little is the sum of all.

Editorial Of The Day

THE WISE GUY

(Hammond, Ind., Times) You know the jay-walker—in fact, you've probably burned your tires at one time or another in avoiding him. He crosses the street wherever and however he pleases. He takes intersections on a diagonal. He's never content to follow the regular path. He thinks he's saving time. But is he? The dodging, jumping and backing up over more time than it would have taken to follow the regular path. And he is taking a needless risk.

The jay-buyer knows a way to buy things cheaper. He knows of a man from whom he can buy radios at half price, of a small mail-order house that will sell him at wholesale prices. His favorite pastime is telling his friends what suckers they are and how much money he could have saved them had they only come to him before furnishing their new home or buying a car.

He thinks he is saving money, but somehow or other he just can't

Why Little May Be Said Favoring Use of Alcohol

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

NOW THAT repeal is in full force in most states, we are able to examine alcohol with less prejudice than we did during the prohibition era.

Whether one uses it or not there is very little to be said in favor of it. We heard a great deal during the prohibition era of the outrageousness of allowing congress to dictate to medical men the drugs they should or should not use, but so far as alcohol was concerned, this was admittedly more a sentimental than an actual grievance. In looking over the references to alcohol in standard medical books, it is found that in one text-book on medicine, alcohol is mentioned as the cause of disease in the discussion of 50 different diseases. This includes cases of epilepsy, where alcohol in the parents is supposed to be a cause of the development of the disease in the offspring.

In a standard text-book on dietetics, the author discusses the various uses and values of alcoholic beverages, and admits that they may have some place in the diet, but concludes, "Upon the other hand, the enormous poverty, misery and unhappiness which comes to the race from the unrestricted use of alcohol greatly outweighs the benefit which its judicious use may bring to a few persons."

The question of whether alcohol should be classed among the foods is also debatable. Undoubtedly it produces a certain number of calories, and in that sense it is a food, but it is neither an inexpensive nor an efficient food, and one of its main dangers is that the addict may use so much of it that he does not eat an adequate or balanced diet otherwise.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendenning can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendenning, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infantile Paralysis," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. SHEPARD, Famous Bridge Teacher

CAN SOUTH GO GAME? SINCE WHIST days opening leads, both against suit calls and no trumps, have been inefficient to a considerable extent, but until now nobody ever knew how (or was willing to undertake the vast labor) to correct them. No text-book is any way near correct on the most efficient opening leads. The following hand from a duplicate game illustrates what happened to followers of the old leads, and how only two East and West pairs defeated the contract by leading correctly.

lead the suit back, as that would have insured game (two spades, three hearts, two clubs and two diamonds, or some other combination of nine certain tricks). West led a heart, his partner won a trick with his K. East led back a club to dummy's greatest weakness, and West won the trick with his K, giving his side its fourth and last defensive trick.

Similar results took place at the two tables where the Q was led and East played his 2. West then led his lowest spade and East was in with his K, but he held no third spade to lead, so he put his partner in by leading a club. West led his J of spades and declarer's Ace won the trick. East won the fourth defensive trick with the K of hearts, after which South proceeded to run off the balance of his nine tricks for game.

The proper opening lead from fewer than six cards, headed by Q-J-10, is the fourth best card. At only two tables was this lead made. In both instances the K held the trick and the 2 came back. South covered with his 8 in one case and the 10 took the trick. Still holding Q-J East led his Q and the declarer won the trick, hoping that East held the missing K of clubs. The J of hearts lost to East's K, giving the defenders their third defensive trick. East led back a club. South could obtain only a single discard on dummy's hearts. He took the finesse and lost to the K. Also West won a fifth trick with his good spade. The same defeat of one at the eighth table, who won the second lead of spades with his Ace.

Bidding went: South, 1-No Trump (which is preferable to a suit call on a 4-3-3-3 distribution); North, 2-Hearts; South, 2-No Trumps; North, 3-No Trumps.

Women's Social club of the Presbyterian church will have its regular meeting at 7:30 p. m. at the church. The men of the church will be guests at this session. Miss Abbe Mills Clarke and Mrs. Theodore Huston will play four piano numbers from Tchaikowsky's "Nut Cracker Suite" and Mrs. Tom Renick will tell the story of the Nut Cracker Suite.

Women's Christian Temperance union will have its annual Child Welfare meeting at the home of Mrs. Noah Spangler, W. High-st. It will be an all-day session beginning at 10:30 a. m. with a covered-dish luncheon at noon. A sewing will be held in the afternoon. Members are requested to bring thimbles, needles and thread. Washington Grange will meet in regular session at 8 p. m. at the Washington-twp school.

STATE SOLONS NEAR BALLOT ON LOTTERIES

lars without resorting to additional taxation. The money that would come in through a state lottery they contended, is now being spent on foreign lotteries with no benefit to the state.

May Boost Sheriffs

The House will also vote tomorrow on Rep. J. G. Mill's measure to boost the salaries of sheriffs in the smaller counties. Their pay is based on population. Whereas they now receive only $55 for each 1,000 of the first 15,000 inhabitants, Mills proposes to increase this to $100. Existing rates in the upper brackets are reduced slightly to offset the increase in smaller counties, leaving sheriffs in larger counties receiving approximately their present pay.

Two more county "home rule" measures which have been approved by the senate are to be considered by the House tomorrow. They seek consolidation of certain county welfare departments, authorize county purchasing agents and provide for county personnel agents to represent the state civil service commission.

Household Arts

The flowers of Spring -- tulips, bleeding-heart, jonquils are gathered in this picture ready to make a gay color spot in your room. Done in cross stitch (8 to the inch) each flower is shaded in its natural colors. This hanging would make an especially effective decoration over a mantel. You need, of course not frame it for it needs only to be lined and then is ready to hand.

In pattern 5351 you will find a transfer pattern of a hanging 15x 20 inches; a color chart and key; material requirements; illustrations of stitches needed.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Herald Household Arts Dept., 124 W. Main St., Circleville, O.

Bishops to Relay

Four Ohio Wesleyan track stars including Howard White, this city, will take part in the shuttle hurdle race in the Penn relays next Saturday. Others on the team are: Bob Ulrich, Columbus; Fred Duncan, Oak Park, Ill.; and Chuck Harmon, Tiffin. Wesleyan's full team has no track meet this week-end because of the annual high school relays. The quartet selected to invade Philadelphia has started in four meets during the winter and early spring.

White's Score Points

That an injury suffered at Morgantown, W. Va., has slowed White down a little is practically certain as a result of a dual meet with Western Reserve at Delaware Saturday. In his sophomore and junior years White consistently defeated Ulrich in the hurdles, but in the WRU event he trailed Ulrich to run second in the 120-yard high hurdles and the 220-yard low hurdles—White also was second in the broad jump with his brother, Dean, taking third in that event—Dean was tied for first in the high jump at 5 feet 10 1/2 inches—Howard won more points by tying for third in the pole vault.

Refused Trophies

After the trophies were returned to Sweden after being presented to Thorpe on the A. A. U. charge that the Indian had been a professional before the Olympic games.

Several years before the Olympics, Thorpe claims, he accepted $20 to cover his expenses in a baseball game to which he had to travel to play.

After the trophies were returned to Sweden they were offered to H. Wieslander, who had won second place to Thorpe.

"Jim Thorpe won them—not I," Wieslander declared in refusing to accept the trophies.

"I've won my last contest," the 47-year-old Carlisle Indian said today, "but there's one thing I want to do for my kids—I want them to know what their father once was."

Thorpe has three sons, Phillip, 8, Billie, 6, and Richard, 2. Already acclaimed the greatest football player who ever lived, Thorpe in 1912 won the pentathlon and the decathlon.

As the plaudits of thousands rang the air King Gustav of Sweden proclaimed:

"Sir, you are the greatest athlete in the world!"

Then the king presented a bronze bust to the then 24-year-old Indian for winning the pentathlon for winning the decathlon, on behalf of the Czar of Russia, Thorpe was presented a replica of a Viking ship, inlaid with gold and precious stones.

So today, Thorpe, still remembered by American people as the greatest all-around athlete the world has ever known, began his fight to win back those precious Olympic trophies.

Appeals to Consul

Thorpe appealed to P. N. Engstrom, vice consul to Sweden, at Los Angeles, for aid.

Years ago Sweden attempted to return the trophies to Thorpe but New York A. A. U. officials would not accept the awards for the American, the Indian said.

Since then they have remained unclaimed in the palace of the king.

"JUST TOO SLOW"

SAYS SPEED KING

LAWRENCE, Kas., April 22— "I just didn't run fast enough," was Glenn Cunningham's explanation today of his defeat by Glen Dawson in the exhibition mile race at the annual Kansas relays.

Speculation concerning Cunningham's future career was rife, as experts recalled Saturday's defeat was his third indifferent race in the past three weeks.

Cunningham ran a 4:28 mile at the Texas relays and was timed at 2:22.4 for 1000 yards indoors at St. Louis, two weeks ago. The winning time Saturday was 4:17.4, as compared to Cunningham's record of 4:06.7.

The Kansans will compete in the Drake Relays at Des Moines, this weekend.

Tracksters In Meet This Afternoon; Bexley Ball Team Here Tuesday

High school athletes were engaged in a track and field meet this afternoon against New Holland, Williamsport, Pickaway and Washington teams, hopeful of taking a victory.

The meet started at 3 o'clock and was directed by Coach Pete Herberholz.

The relay team which was expected to enter the Ohio Wesleyan relays at Saturday had not been entered because Bob Shadley is unable to run. New Holland is expected to enter the B meet there.

Tuesday afternoon Coach Herberholz' hopefuls of the diamond are scheduled to play Bexley in a baseball game on the local field.

Bexley is reported to have a good team and will test the Red and Black in no small degree.

Coach Herberholz has not intimidated who his mount choice will be with Coleman, Carothers and Rader ready for action.

'DIZ' IN FORM ST. LOUIS WINS

Gives Pirates Five Hits, Vaughan's Homer Being Only Run Scored

NEW YORK, April 22— Like the first report of Mark Twain's demise, these training camp stories that the singular Dizzy Dean had lost some of his remarkable effectiveness appear to have been greatly exaggerated.

If Dizzy's performance against the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday is any indication of a stiff arm let's have more of them.

The eccentric Dean held the Pirates to five scattered hits and enabled the St. Louis Cardinals to win an easy 6 to 1 victory before 28,000 fans, the largest crowd to attend a game in Pittsburgh since 1929. He would have had a shutout if Arky Vaughan hadn't got hold of a fast ball in the second inning and driven it into the left field bleachers for a homer.

THORPE, STAR ATHLETE, TO ASK TROPHIES

Indian Appeals to Swedish Counsel to Give Him Trophies Won in 1912

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 22—Although he recently announced he was definitely through with sports, Jim Thorpe, noted Indian athlete, today had launched a campaign to regain trophies he won in the 1912 Olympic games held in Sweden.

The trophies were returned to Sweden after being presented to Thorpe on the A. A. U. charge that the Indian had been a professional before the Olympic games.

Several years before the Olympics, Thorpe claims he accepted $20 to cover his expenses in a baseball game to which he had to travel to play.

Reds In Thriller

Those who were fortunate enough to hear the GWN broadcast of the Cincinnati-Chicago game Sunday enjoyed a real ball game. A triple play and as the Enquirer states it: "Everything else except the burning of the grandstand" happened—Lew Riggs played a nice game and so did Bill Myers—Ival Goodman, late of the Cardinal chain, starred for the Reds with a base cleaning triple in the twelfth inning. The Reds won 8-4.

Speeders In Society

Only kings can belong to a new "world's most exclusive club" but none of the world's ruling monarchs could crash this select circle! The only eligible men are "kings of speed" and those who brandish the gold emblem of the "Champion-100-An-Hour Club", an organization sponsored by a spark plug company, are race drivers who, without relief, have driven the 500 miles of the Indianapolis annual speed classic on May 30 at 100 miles per hour or more.

Captain E. V. Rickenbacker and T. E. "Pop" Myers, president and vice-president respectively of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway corporation; M. C. Dewitt, vice-president of the spark plug company, and T. E. Allen, secretary of the contest board of the American Automobile association, make up an ex-officio board of governors of the new club—Records of the AAA are now being examined to determine those eligible for membership.

BIRDS ON TOP

COLUMBUS, April 22—The Columbus Red Birds perched in undisputed first place in the American Association today after taking an Easter double-header from the Louisville Colonels by 6 to 5 and 6 to 2 scores.

Meantime, the Toledo Mud Hens dropped a double-header to the Indianapolis Indians, with 7 to 3 and 7 to 2 scores. The Hens are in seventh place with a season's record to date of one win and six losses.

The Red Birds boast five wins and one loss.

High school athletes were engaging in a track and field meet this afternoon against New Holland, Williamsport, Pickaway and Washington teams, hopeful of taking a victory.

The meet started at 3 o'clock and was directed by Coach Pete Herberholz.

The relay team which was expected to enter the Ohio Wesleyan relays next Saturday has not been entered because Bob Shadley is unable to run. New Holland is expected to enter the B meet there.

Tuesday afternoon Coach Herberholz' hopefuls of the diamond are scheduled to play Bexley in a baseball game on the local field. Bexley is reported to have a good team and will test the Red and Black in no small degree.

Coach Herberholz has not intimated who his mound choice will be with Coleman, Carothers and Rader ready for action.

CONSERVANCY UNHAMPERED BY ENGINEERS' REPORT

SOLON GIVES TWO REASONS

Fiesinger Believes Unemployment Angle Will Help Scioto-Sandusky

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 22.—The application of the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy district for a PWA allotment of $26,000,000 will be unhampered by the recently published "adverse" report of Army engineers, it was said today at the war department.

Two major reasons were cited for this pronouncement. They are: (1) The letter written to Representative Fiesinger, of Ohio, by Brigadier General Pillsbury, assistant chief of Army engineers, referred to a survey which is several years old, and which did not cover the same improvement plan now advocated by the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy district.

(2) Army engineers are required, in considering the merit of a project, to examine its return on a dollars-and-cents basis, without doing any "guessing" as to future developments which might be fostered by the improvement itself; whereas a public works agency, in making a loan, may well look into the future and consider many things besides the immediately certain monetary return.

No Recent Survey

No recent survey of the Scioto-Sandusky flood control project has been made, it was said at the division of Rivers and Harbors. It is expected that such a survey will be made, at the request of whatever emergency agency is set up to administer the new work relief fund, after the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy district has filed its loan application, it was said.

The previous report on the Scioto-Sandusky project was made at the request of the 69th Congress, it was pointed out, and was based on a consideration of the project primarily as a waterway project. Emphatically, this previous report was not on the same project which is now sponsored by the conservancy district, and Army engineers would not care to go on record at this time as opposing the present project, or as declaring it economically unsound, it was said.

Pointing out that the present project is not being submitted primarily as a flood-control measure, but as a water-control measure, Representative Fiesinger said today that he is confident the agency administering the new work-relief fund will look on the project favorably.

In Different Light

"They will have to look at it in a different light," he said. "They will be trying to care for unemployment. That old report was on a project that was supposed to be a waterway, so they couldn't esti-

LIQUOR DEALERS WANT CHANGES IN PRESENT SET-UP

CLEVELAND, April 22.—Demanding that state liquor stores be abolished and Ohio's liquor monopoly plan liberalized, the Ohio Liquor Dealers' association today declared open war against the present state liquor set-up.

Harry H. Elder, attorney for the association, said the demands will be carried to the State Liquor Control board in Cleveland next week. The association, with headquarters here, represents hundreds of retail permit holders throughout the state.

The State Liquor Control board has announced it will hold public hearings, beginning next week, in Cleveland, Cincinnati, Dayton, Toledo and Akron, on changes in the present monopoly plan.

Elder said the dealers' group will demand the following changes:

- Abolition of state stores.
- Reduction in prices.
- Liberalization of the present rule requiring that sale of drinks be halted for the Sabbath at midnight Saturday.
- Abolition of the $1 galleage tax which the association claims Governor Davey promised, during his campaign, to eliminate.
- Elimination of the state excess profit tax which the association claims has been collected so far at a loss to the state.
- Stricter enforcement rules to fight the Ohio bootlegger so that mere possession of illicit liquor will form the basis for arrest and revocation of permit.

3 ARRESTED AS 'GAME' ROBBERS

NEW LEXINGTON, April 22.—Three Newark men are held here for questioning in a $1,200 holdup of a card game in the Columbus club. The names given were George Annarino, reported a pugilist, Edwin Hart and Tony Papilio. Hart has been named as the gunman by witnesses.

ALLOCATE FUNDS

WASHINGTON, April 22.—President Roosevelt expects to have a virtually complete allocation of the $4,850,000,000 work-relief program ready by the end of this week, it was stated by the white house today.

The amounts that are to go to each division probably will not be determined, but the division of labor, as between the various federal departments and bureaus, is expected to be completed this week. Mr. Roosevelt will devote the major part of this time during the next few days to this task.

mate damages that would be saved by the improvement. We are not now advocating it as a waterway. I don't think that this old report means very much.

"I think that as soon as we get an application filed, and have a chance to get a new survey made, they will get an entirely different picture."

The loan application of the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy district will be filed next week, Fiesinger predicted.

ARMY PIGEONS TELL NEWS OF ISLE DISASTER

Taiko, and the handicapped firefighters feared that it would be impossible to save the city.

Whole villages of huts and frame houses were wiped out. Railway tunnels caved in, landslides buried tracks, and bridges collapsed. It will be some days before telegraphs and telephones are operating again, officials said.

A pilot sent by the Taihoku defense corps to survey the area reported fires in several villages, with the population hurrying to open fields in terror.

Electric power plants were destroyed, a major oil pipe burst, gas mains were broken, adding darkness and further fire peril to the woes of the residents in larger towns.

Eye-witnesses who made their way into the capital brought poignant tales of weeping children running through the streets looking for their lost parents; of relatives digging in the debris for bodies, and of a shortage of coffins, making it necessary for the natives to use huge empty beer cases for caskets.

It was estimated that government buildings, schools and business houses alone involved losses of 10,000,000 yen ($2,850,000).

Refineries Undamaged

No damage was reported to sugar refineries, and this year's sugar crop has already been refined and stored or shipped abroad.

Consul Maney, who has been here only two weeks, said the American consulate also escaped damage.

Emperor Hirohito of Japan ordered $8,000,000 yen ($2,280,000) set aside for relief and reconstruction, and the Formosa government immediately appropriated an additional 10,000,000 yen.

British warships stationed at Hong Kong, were preparing to go to the assistance of the islanders if needed.

The eighth air regiment, operating from its military base, started a survey of the devastated area. The third destroyer flotilla from the Mako, Japan, naval station is on its way with food, blankets and first aid supplies.

This is Formosa's second major earthquake disaster in thirty years.

PLANT CLOSED

CLEVELAND, April 22.—Affecting more than 1,000 employees, the Cleveland Electric Vacuum Cleaner Co. today suspended its manufacturing operations in the strike called by the Mechanicals' Educational Society of America.

A heavy picket line was maintained at the plant by the union and a detail of police was sent to the scene to watch developments. No violence was reported, police said.

Approximately 800 workers, said to be members of the M. E. S. A., walked out on strike last Friday night, after negotiations by the union and company representatives and Arthur L. Faulkner, United States Department of Labor conciliator, ended in a deadlock.

Midwest Families Begin Migration Into Alaska

comfortable four and five-room log homes, and wait 30 years before settling accounts. In full years, in fact, before asking payment of the 2 per cent interest.

Forty Acres Apiece

At Palmer, in the heart of the Matanuska valley, the government has laid out 200 plots of 40 acres each. Before the first contingent of settlers arrives these plots will be numbered and spacious tents will be erected on them.

As the colonists step from the train at Palmer they will draw numbers from a hat. As each draws a number, he and his family will be instructed how to reach the designated timber tract out of which the future livelihood of that family must be carved by axe and plow.

Four hundred men from north-west transient camps will be brought to Alaska with the first contingent of settlers to help clear the land. With the menfolk among the colonists, these woodsmen, working at CCC wages, will make the forests ring with their axe blows and operate tractor-driven plows to turn the virgin soil.

Some of them will begin immediately to build log houses for the settlers, according to plans drawn by FERA architects.

October Time Limit

The houses must be built by October, so must a schoolhouse, which will also be the community's social center in the long winter months when the sun shines only 200 minutes a day.

So must a cannery, a garage and a workshop be erected in the wilderness before October 15, when the 100 transient camp workmen will sail back to the States, leaving the colonists to face alone the hardships of their first winter under the aurora borealis.

Through the winter, the colonists will be able to do little except attend their cows, one of which will be assigned to each family. In the spring, however, they will be expected to produce nearly a million dollars worth of farm products. This is important.

Large Sum for Trade

Merchants in Seward, Anchorage, Matanuska and Fairbanks annually buy a million dollars worth of foodstuffs from the United States and Canada. When the present colonization project was conceived last year, those merchants declared their readiness to purchase produce of the Matanuska valley if they could be sure of receiving enough for their retail needs.

Here, and the situation is typical of Alaska, which has prospered throughout the worldwide depression the demand simply waits to be filled. If the colonists can fill it they will be amply rewarded for the pains of pioneer-ing.

turned when he wanted to plant ideas with the President. He was the leader of the camp which claimed that Reconstruction and Reform must come ahead of Recovery.

Now, however, Moley maintains: "We should put on full steam toward Recovery and relegate everything else to a position of secondary importance."

Apparently forgetting that he helped good the "Frankfurter boys" into writing the Securities and Stock Exchange Acts, Moley now claims that they are throttling private capital and must be amended.

Warning of the danger of Father Coughlin, Huey Long, Upton Sinclair and Townsend, Moley calls for better education of newspaper editors and radio broadcasting stations in order that damaging information shall not be issued by them.

Finally he calls for a program by which eight million people shall be employed by private industry at the rate of 1,000,000 a month beginning June 1, 1935, and extending:

"It can, must, and shall be done. Plan our work, then work our plan."

Many people attribute Roosevelt's growing trend right to the influence of Moley.

COLUMBUS, O., April 22.—William M. Morgan, Newark, president of the Ohio State Federation of Labor and Thomas J. Donnelly, secretary, will meet with other executives of the organization here Wednesday to select representatives to attend the labor conference at Washington next Saturday, officials said here today.

Either Morgan or Donnelly, or both, will probably represent Ohio labor at the national conference of labor leaders, called to plan an intensive campaign for major legislation affecting labor interest, leaders intimated.

GIRL EXPLORER. "When I'm tired," says Mrs. William LaVarre, "I stop and smoke a Camel. It wakes up my energy in no time. Smoking Camels steadily does not affect the nerves."

ENGINEER. "Camels refresh me in a very few minutes," says Erwin B. Jones, staff engineer, Boulder Dam. "And man, what a swell taste Camels have!"

TRANSPACIFIC FLYER. "Camels are my super-charger." They give me new energy and "go," says Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith.

REPORTER. "When I'm feeling 'let down,'" says Marny Nichols, "I get a 'lift' in my energy with a Camel."

BRIDGE ENGINEER. R. G. Cone says: "It's a strenuous life—bridging the Golden Gate. When I'm worn out, a Camel quickly relieves me of tiredness."

CAMERAMAN. E. E. C. Pickwood speaking: "Do I get worn out and exhausted? You bet! The way I turn on my energy again is to smoke a Camel!"

EXPLORER. Captain R. Stuart Murray, F. R. G. S., says: "Camels always give me a pick-up in energy when I need it, and I prefer Camel's flavor."

RADIO EXPERT. "Camels are my choice on taste," says Harry Miller, radio engineer, of Station WOR. "And smoking a Camel helps to relieve fatigue."

COLLEGE GIRL. Listen to Marguerite Osman: "Smoking a Camel makes me feel fresher... more alert. And what a grand taste Camels have—so mild and appealing!"

ALASKAN EXPLORER. Harold McTracken has this to say: "Camels are mild... yet have a full, rich flavor. They refresh my energy!"

HORSEWOMAN. "I don't know of anything else that brings the pleasant 'lift' that I get from a Camel," says Miss Helene Bradshaw. "Camels never give me jumpy nerves!"

FELDMAN. Stanley Feldman says: "When I feel 'let down,' Camels give me 'go.' I'd walk miles for a Camel!"

FARMER. I. A. Bailey: "Like many farmers, I have found a way to lick tiredness. I smoke a Camel and find my energy renewed. Camels suit me right down to the ground!"

CONSERVANCY UNHAMPERED BY ENGINEERS' REPORT

SOLON GIVES TWO REASONS

Fiesinger Believes Unemployment Angle Will Help Scioto-Sandusky

WASHINGTON, D. C. April 22—The application of the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy district for a PWA allotment of $26,000,000 will be unhampered by the recently published "adverse" report of Army engineers, it was said today at the war department.

Two major reasons were cited for this pronouncement. They are: (1) The letter written to Representative Fiesinger, of Ohio, by Brigadier General Pillsbury, assistant chief of Army engineers, referred to a survey which is several years old, and which did not cover the same improvement plan now advocated by the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy district.

(2) Army engineers are required, in considering the merit of a project, to examine its return on a dollars-and-cents basis, without doing any "guessing" as to future developments which might be fostered by the improvement itself; whereas a public works agency, in making a loan, may well look into the future and consider many things besides the immediately certain monetary return.

No Recent Survey

No recent survey of the Scioto-Sandusky flood control project has been made, it was said at the division of Rivers and Harbors. It is expected that such a survey will be made, at the request of whatever emergency agency is set up to administer the new work-relief fund, after the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy district has filed its loan application, it was said.

The previous report on the Scioto-Sandusky project was made at the request of the 69th Congress. It was pointed out, and was based on a consideration of the project primarily as a waterway project.

Emphatically, this previous report was not on the same project which is now sponsored by the conservancy district, and Army engineers would not care to go on record at this time as opposing the present project, or as declaring it economically unsound, it was said.

Pointing out that the present project is not being submitted primarily as a waterway improvement, but as a flood-control measure, Representative Fiesinger said today that he is confident the agency administering the new work-relief fund will look on the project favorably.

In Different Light

"They will have to look at it in a different light," he said. "They will be trying to care for unemployment. That old report was on a project that was supposed to be a waterway, so they couldn't estimate damages that would be saved by the improvement. We are not now advocating it as a waterway. I don't think that this old report means very much."

"I think that as soon as we get an application filed, and have a chance to get a new survey made, they will get an entirely different picture."

The loan application of the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy district will be filed next week, Fiesinger predicted.

LIQUOR DEALERS WANT CHANGES IN PRESENT SET-UP

CLEVELAND, April 22—Demanding that state liquor stores be abolished and Ohio's liquor monopoly plan liberalized, the Ohio Liquor Dealers' association today declared open war against the present state liquor set-up.

Harry H. Elder, attorney for the association, said the demands will be carried to the State Liquor Control board in Cleveland next week. The association, with headquarters here, represents hundreds of retail permit holders throughout the state.

The State Liquor Control board has announced it will hold public hearings, beginning next week, in Cleveland, Cincinnati, Dayton, Toledo and Akron, on changes in the present monopoly plan.

Elder said the dealers' group will demand the following changes:

Abolition of state stores. Reduction in prices.

Liberalization of the present rule requiring that sale of drinks be halted for the Sabbath at midnight Saturday.

Abolition of the $1 gallonage tax which the association claims Governor Davey promised, during his campaign, to eliminate.

Elimination of the state excess profit tax which the association claims has been collected so far at a loss to the state.

Stricter enforcement rules to fight the Ohio bootlegger so that mere possession of illicit liquor will form the basis for arrest and revocation of permit.

3 ARRESTED AS 'GAME' ROBBERS

NEW LEXINGTON, April 22—Three Newark men are held here for questioning in a $1,200 holdup of a card game in the Columbus club. The names given were George Annarino, reported a pugilist, Edwin Hart and Tony Papilio. Hart has been named as the gunman by witnesses.

ALLOCATE FUNDS

WASHINGTON, April 22—President Roosevelt expects to have a virtually complete allocation of the $4,880,000,000 work-relief program ready by the end of this week, it was stated by the white house today.

The amounts that are to go to each division probably will not be determined, but the division of labor, as between the various federal departments and bureaus, is expected to be completed this week. Mr. Roosevelt will devote the major part of this time during the next few days to this task.

ARMY PIGEONS TELL NEWS OF ISLE DISASTER

Talko, and the handicapped fire-fighters feared that it would be impossible to save the city.

Whole villages of huts and frame houses were wiped out. Railway tunnels caved in, landslides buried tracks, and bridges collapsed. It will be some days before telegraphs and telephones are operating again, officials said.

A pilot sent by the Taihoku defense corps to survey the area reported fires in several villages, with the population hurrying to open fields in terror.

Electric power plants were destroyed, a major oil pipe line burst, gas mains were broken, adding darkness and further fire peril to the woes of the residents in larger towns.

Eye-witnesses who made their way into the capital brought poignant tales of weeping children running through the streets looking for their lost parents; of relatives digging in the debris for bodies, and of a shortage of coffins, making it necessary for the natives to use huge empty beer cases for caskets.

It was estimated that government buildings, schools and business houses alone involved losses of 10,000,000 yen ($2,850,000).

Refineries Undamaged

No damage was reported to sugar refineries, and this year's sugar crop has already been refined and stored or shipped abroad.

Maney, who has been here only two weeks, said the American consulate also escaped damage.

Emperor Hirohito of Japan ordered 8,000,000 yen ($2,280,000) set aside for relief and reconstruction, and the Formosa government immediately appropriated an additional 10,000,000 yen.

British warships stationed at Hong Kong, were preparing to go to the assistance of the Islanders if needed.

The eighth air regiment, operating from its military base, started a survey of the devastated area. The third destroyer flotilla from the Mako, Japan, naval station is on its way with food, blankets and first aid supplies.

This is Formosa's second major earthquake disaster in thirty years.

PLANT CLOSED

CLEVELAND, April 22—Affecting more than 1,000 employees, the Cleveland Electric Vacuum Cleaner Co. today suspended its manufacturing operations in the strike called by the Mechanics' Educational Society of America.

A heavy picket line was maintained at the plant by the union and a detail of police was sent to the scene to watch developments. No violence was reported, police said.

Approximately 800 workers, said to be members of the M. E. S. A., walked out on strike last Friday night, after negotiations by the union and company representatives, and Arthur L. Faulkner, United States Department of Labor conciliator, ended in a deadlock.

Midwest Families Begin Migration Into Alaska

build comfortable four and five-room log homes, and wait 30 years before settling accounts—five full years in fact, before asking payment of the 3 per cent interest.

Forty Acres Apiece

At Palmer, in the heart of the Matanuska valley, the government has laid out 200 plots of 40 acres each. Before the first contingent of settlers arrives these plots will be numbered and spacious tents will be erected on them.

As the colonists step from the train at Palmer they will draw numbers from a hat. As each draws a number, he and his family will be instructed how to reach the designated timber tract out of which the future livelihood of that family must be carved by axe and plow.

Four hundred men from northwest transient camps will be brought to Alaska with the first contingent of settlers to help clear the land. With the menfolk among the colonists these woodsmen, working at CCC wages, will make the forests ring with their axe blades and operate tractor-driven plows to turn the virgin soil.

Some of them will begin immediately to build log houses for the settlers, according to plans drawn by FERA architects.

October Time Limit

The houses must be built by October. So must a schoolhouse, which will also be the community's social center in the long winter months when the sun shines only 200 minutes a day.

So must a cannery, a garage and a workshop be erected in the wilderness before October 15, when the 400 transient camp workmen will sail back to the States, leaving the colonists to face alone the hardships of their first winter under the aurora borealis.

Through the winter, the colonists will be able to do little except attend their cows, one of which will be assigned to each family. In the spring, however, they will be expected to produce nearly a million dollars worth of farm products. This is important.

Large Sum for Trade

Merchants in Seward, Anchorage, Matanuska and Fairbanks annually buy a million dollars worth of foodstuffs from the United States and Canada. When the present colonization project was conceived last year, those merchants declared their readiness to purchase produce of the Matanuska valley if they could be sure of receiving enough for their retail needs.

Here—and the situation is typical of Alaska, which has prospered throughout the worldwide depression—the demand simply waits to be filled. If the colonists can fill it they will be amply rewarded for the pains of pioneering.

turned when he wanted to plant ideas with the President. He was the leader of the camp which claimed that Reconstruction and Reform must come ahead of Recovery.

Now, however, Moley maintains: "We should put on full steam toward Recovery and relegate everything else to a position of secondary importance."

Apparently forgetting that he helped goad the "Frankfurter boys" into writing the Securities and Stock Exchange Acts, Moley now claims that they are throttling private capital and must be amended.

Warning of the danger of Father Coughlin, Huey Long, Upton Sinclair and Townsend, Moley calls for better education of newspaper editors and radio, broadcasting stations in order that damaging information shall not be issued by them.

Finally he calls for a program by which eight million people shall be employed by private industry at the rate of 1,000,000 a month beginning June 1, 1935, and exhorts:

"It can, must, and shall be done. Plan our work, then work our plan."

Many people attribute Roosevelt's growing trend right to the influence of Moley.
